Time-Adaptive Skills Assessments

In addition to standard skills assessments, First Advantage offers time-adaptive skills testing for several job roles and functions. Using computer adaptive testing (CAT), an adaptive test automatically mimics a wise examiner who asks questions based on test takers' responses.

Specifically, if an examiner asks a question that is too difficult for the test taker, the next question asked should be easier. If the question turns out to be too easy, a more difficult question should be asked. This method of testing allows a candidate's skill level to be determined in the shortest amount of time – up to 50 percent less time than standard assessments – without sacrificing accuracy or detail.
