The First Advantage security portal was designed to help eliminate the “black hole syndrome” often created between human resources and security or risk management departments. This system automates form collection and submission and directly connects your human resources department to investigators electronically.

This innovative add-on module to the First Advantage applicant tracking system pre-populates the necessary background release forms allowing candidates to provide the remaining information online. Once the forms are completed, the system routes the appropriate data directly to investigators eliminating many of the challenges in expediting the background verification process.

When the investigation is complete, the system provides a real-time approval or rejection notification to recruiters. Completed background screening results are stored in a searchable database that is easily accessible on the Web, allowing for around the clock remote auditing. The security portal also includes a unique security transaction log for investigators to make detailed notes in candidate records that can only be viewed by security users.
